

Parents' Day To Feature Symposium

The annual Parents' Day ceremonies will be held at Evergreen this Sunday, May 14. A symposium entitled "Peace in World Unity with God" is to be presented in the Gymnasium.

Mrs. Edward F. Pfeiffer, mother of Lieut. Mark Pfeiffer, '41—who died in an airplane crash in China recently, will raise Loyola's revised service flag in a ceremony to follow the symposium.

Former Dean To Speak

The Very Rev. Lawrence C. Gorman, S. J., Rector of Georgetown University and former Dean of Loyola, will address the parents of the alumni from the porch of the Faculty Residence.

Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament will be given by the Very Rev. Edward B. Bunn, S. J., Rector of Loyola, on the campus. Fr. Bunn will be attended by two alumni in the armed forces.

An informal reception will follow on the lawn in front of the Faculty Residence.

Father Murray Is Critic

The Rev. John C. Murray, S. J., of Woodstock College, editor of Theological Studies, will act as critic for the symposium.

Richard H. Lerch, chairman for the discussion, will speak on "Contemporary Aspirations for Unity among Nations". Francis J. Goldsmith will discuss "The Problem of Peace in Early Christian Life", while Joseph L. Gessler will speak on "Agreement in the Unity of Mind."

The subjects will be further developed by Angelo Alecci, who will speak on "Peace through Union with Christ", and Donald Giblin, who will discuss "Charity in the Unity of Heart".

During the flag raising ceremony special places are to be reserved for

Short Story Contest Announced

Two prizes of $50 and $25 in War Bonds for the two best short stories written by an alumnus or undergraduate of Loyola College have been offered by THE GREYHOUND, it was announced today by the Rev. Paul J. Gibbons, S. J., moderator of the paper.

"Short stories between 1,000 and 3,500 words in length on any subject are acceptable material," Fr. Gibbons said. "Entries will be judged on originality of theme and treatment, and the general literary ability displayed by the writer."

Students enrolled in the School of Adult Education are also eligible to enter the contest, and a large number of entries is expected from them.

The deadline for the contest is midnight of July 25, but entrants are asked to submit their manuscripts as early as possible. The results will be announced in the summer issue of THE GREYHOUND which will appear on August 10.

The Very Rev. Edward B. Bunn, S. J., Rector of Loyola, will head the committee of judges, which also includes the Rev. Joseph A. d'Inville, S. J., Dean of the College, Fr. Gibbons, and two other judges from outside the College whose names will be announced later.

No limit is set on the number of entries submitted by any one person, but each story will be considered as an entity, Fr. Gibbons stated.

The official rules of the contest are printed on page 3. Any persons desiring further information may address questions to "Contest Editor, THE GREYHOUND, Loyola College, Baltimore-10, Maryland." Students may call at THE GREYHOUND office at any time.

Loyola Offering Five Scholarships

A competitive examination for five scholarships for the entering Freshman Class will be held at Loyola College tomorrow morning at 9.

The examination will consist of three screening tests: a psychological aptitude test, a mathematics test and an English test.

Posters announcing the examination have been sent to all high schools in the State. All high school graduates are eligible to take the test.

The new Freshman Class will register on July 13 and report for classes on July 17.

Business Heads Meet at Loyola

A meeting of the personnel directors of every large industrial organization in Baltimore was held at Evergreen on May 5. The conference was held to acquaint them with the Adult Education program sponsored by Loyola College.

After the dinner which was held in the Faculty Residence, the Very Rev. Edward B. Bunn, S. J., president of Loyola College, outlined the curriculum of the School of Adult Education.

Among those who attended the conference were: K. H. Andrus, of the DuPont Co.; G. L. Brown, Assistant State Director of the War Manpower Commission; M. J. Callahan, of the Revere Copper Co.; J. W. Carothers, of the Consolidated Gas and Electric Co.; H. T. Douglas, of the Black and Decker Co.; J. Grnel, of the Revere Copper Co.; J. A. Hafer, of the Baltimore Transit Co.; E. J. Huberman of the Eskay Co.; L. T. James, of Eastern Mill Co.; C. D. Jones, of the Western Maryland Dairy Co.; A. W. Lamprey, of Lever Brothers Co.; H. Langfeldt, of Pemco Corp.; J. A. Reynolds, of Crown Cork and Seal Co.; J. M. Schenn, American Smelting Co.; J. C. Strubecker, of the National Can Corp.; S. L. Thomsen, of the Davison Chemical Co.; J. E. Weer, of the Koppers Co.; M. E. Williams, of the Bulmar Corp.; G. E. Wolf, of the Baltimore Transit Co.; and Roy Scott of Allied Aviation.

Anchor Aweigh!

It looks as if part of the present Greyhound staff may soon hold a meeting in the ward room of one of Uncle Sam's battleships in the near future.

Within a week, Terrence Burke, the Editor-in-Chief; J. Alban Rogers, Exchange Editor; Frank Goldsmith, Copy Editor; James O'Neill, Newswriter, and Tom Gierle, Sportswriter, announced impending inductions into the Navy.

Debonaires to Play For Junior Prom

By J. Alban Rogers

The Junior Prom, Loyola's biggest social event of the year, will be presented in the Gymnasium at Evergreen on May 20.

The Debonaires, a popular Baltimore orchestra, has been selected to furnish the music.

Prom Queen Chosen

It was announced by Donald Giblin, Junior Class president, that the Prom Queen will be Miss Cecelia Clark, a senior at Towson High School.

Because of the war, the custom of hiring a nationally known band has been discarded and a local orchestra will play for the Prom.

The Debonaires have had a tremendous popularity ever since their beginning a few years ago in Hamilton. They are now considered one of the best bands in the State.

Favors To Be Unique

The arrangement committee promises that the favors to be given at the Prom will be the best ever given at a Loyola dance.

This is to compensate for the fact that "name" bands such as Stan Kenton, Charlie Spivak, and Harry James, which have played at previous proms, are not available because of the war.

Emphasis On Decorations

In addition to the special emphasis is being placed on the decorations and the giving of special programs.

Donald Mohler, chairman of the decoration committee has hired professional decorators to take care of the job of decorating the Gymnasium.

Henry Eckhardt is the chairman of the committee which selected the orchestra and James Garvey heads the program committee.

Ticket Sales Favorable

Donald Giblin, has announced that so far the ticket sales have

Alumni Airmen Listed Missing

Two more Loyola alumni have been reported missing in action by the War Department. Lieut. Howard T. Mattingly, ex '44, of the Army Air Force, was reported missing after a raid over Poland on Easter Sunday. Lieut. George J. Murphy, ex '45, also of the AAF, was missing in a raid over Germany, April 8.

Lieut. Mattingly attended this college from 1940 until 1942. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard T. Mattingly, Sr., of 308 E. 33rd St. Upon completing his training at Selman Field, Monroe, Louisiana, he was married in the post chapel to Miss Janet Willis.

Murphy Overseas Since August

Lieut. Murphy was inducted into the coast artillery in November, 1941, taking his basic training at Fort Eustis, Virginia. He reported for duty at Camp Stewart, Georgia, and was made a staff sergeant.

He transferred to the Air Corps in October, 1942. He won his commission as a second lieutenant when he graduated from San Marcos Naval School in August, 1943, and left for duty overseas soon afterward.

Fifteenth War Casualty

These two casualties mark the fourteenth and fifteenth Loyola alumni to be listed as killed or missing since the beginning of World War II. Twelve former Loyola students have been reported killed and three missing in action.

There are now approximately 850 stars on Loyola's service banner which will be flown on Parents' Day, May 14. Twelve gold stars will represent the number of alumni who have given their lives for their country.

Kernan Reviews Past Proms; Finds Famous Name Bands

By John J. Kernan

Proms may come and proms may go, but the Prom of the "year" is to be the most elaborate and the greatest social success ever conducted by the students of Loyola College.

At least that is what the Evergreenites always say of their Junior Prom. Whether this point is a fact, or merely fancy, cannot be accurately ascertained. But there is one point that can definitely be proved. That is, the students have always supported the "social event" of the year with all of their enthusiasm and their hard-earned "folding" currency.

Prom Welcomed

The month of May has always been welcomed by the students of Loyola who anticipate the long-awaited prom. For many years the dance has been held in the Gymnasium on the campus. However, a few classes have held their proms in hotel ballrooms in the city. One of the major reasons for this was the fact that the gym was so difficult to decorate.

"Name bands" have always been drawing cards at the proms. Old favorites as Jan Garber, Glenn Farrell and Ted Black have held the spotlight at some of the dances. A popular name in the entertainment field today, Bob Crosby, was featured with the Dorsey Brothers orchestra in 1935.

Professionals Decorate Gym

Another popular feature of the proms is the decoration of the gym. Sometimes a professional decorator is hired to do the work, but more often the students have done the work themselves for many years. Some of the decorations have emphasized the spring spirit, while others have used the flags of many nations as their decorative theme.

Favor Designs Vary

The "favor", traditionally given to the young ladies at the prom, is always the surprise of the evening.

College Librarian Resigns Position

Miss Mary Hamilton Lee, librarian at Evergreen since July, 1940, has resigned her position. It was announced by the Rev. Joseph A. d'Inville, Dean of the College. Her successor is Mrs. Frances Hubbard of Earlham College.

Miss Lee received a Bachelor of Arts degree from Manhattanville College in Manhattanville, N. Y., and a degree of Bachelor in Library Science from Columbia University. She introduced the book pocket and card system which facilitates the borrowing of books. Under her management the reference section was improved and the library enlarged by the addition of three thousand volumes. She succeeded Mr. John R. Spellissy, who left Loyola to become State Commissioner of Accident Insurance.

The new librarian is the wife of Doctor John J. Hubbard, professor of Physics at Johns Hopkins University. In 1938 Dr. Hubbard received an honorary degree from Loyola.

"I know that my successor is a very capable person and I was pleased to hear she has been given the position," stated Miss Lee.

"I regret leaving Loyola", she added, "for its spirit and friendliness have impressed me greatly."

Willard Praises Liberal Studies

Heralded by some observers as an educational "block-buster" is a statement by Arthur Cutts Willard, president of the University of Illinois: "Merely completing the study of a collection of college courses for which a degree is awarded as a prerequisite to enter some professional field is not an education, nor is it ever likely to produce a broadly educated man."

President Willard is seeking the solution to a dual problem: producing graduates who are educated, not just trained in a specialty, and providing educational benefits to students who drop out of college after one or two years with little benefit from an uncompleted professional course.

Declaring too much emphasis has been given to professional competence—"training"—and too little emphasis to developing ability to think and acquire information about men and affairs—"knowledge"—President Willard set up five ideal criteria for identifying an "educated man." They are:

1. Ability to use and understand his native tongue in speech and writing, in order to convey his ideas and thoughts clearly and effectively to others.

2. Ability to judge, compare, evaluate, in short, to criticize objectively, the ideas, thoughts and conceptions of other men, and to engage in creative thinking for himself.

3. Ability to use and understand his native tongue in speech and writing, in order to convey his ideas and thoughts clearly and effectively to others.

4. Knowledge of the physical world and the universe in which he lives, meaning of course some understanding of the laws and forces of nature.

5. Knowledge of a profession or a vocation for the purpose of earning a living and serving God and society as a competent and morally responsible individual.

"We train men for all the professions, but we often fail to educate even those who receive collegiate degrees," said Dr. Willard.

the parents of those alumni who have been killed or are missing in the service.

Danlet Silverstein and Unto Erkila will provide the musical entertainment preceding the symposium, and Thaddeus Strluski will sing the National Anthem and Schubert's Ave Maria before Benediction.

Buildings To Be Visited

After the Benediction, the College buildings will be open for inspection to the guests.

In addition to the members of the Student Council, students of Notre Dame of Maryland and Roland Park Country School will act as a reception committee.

Reception Committee

Following are the members of the reception committee: Betsy Rellity, chairman; Louise Ames, Edith Boggs, Jane Corddry, Louise Harrison, Frances Smith, Betty Warren, Susan Watson, Lucy Woods and Lellila Woodward.

Minutes Of Educational Meeting

Chief State School Officers, Dr. Pullen attended in Washington early in March along with delegates from 31 education associations and organizations. One of the key problems presented at this national conference was the status of the proposed legislation concerning veterans' education. The Thomas (S-1509) and the Clark (S-1617) bills have been superseded by an omnibus bill S-1767. In the House, Borden Bill HR-4356 has been replaced by the Rankin Bill HR-4357. S-1617 and HR-4357 are essentially identical. On the Federal level the administration of veterans' education is placed in the Veterans' Administration and not in the U. S. Office of Education. Dr. Pullen reported that the national conference unanimously adopted the following statement of principles which they desired embodied in legislation to provide education for discharged military personnel:

1. The Veterans' Education under this act should be administered through the authorized educational agencies, federal, state and local.

2. That responsibility for certification of eligibility of the individual, in terms of military service and subsistence payments to individuals, should rest with the Veterans' Administration.

3. That in each state there shall be designated or created a duly authorized state educational agency which shall be broadly representative of the various levels and types of education within the state. The functions of such a state educational agency should be:

a. To furnish lists of approved educational training institutions furnishing training under this act.

b. To advise and assist the approved educational and training institutions in furnishing training under this act.

c. To determine, subject to policies to be established on a national basis, the amount of payments to the educational and training institutions furnishing training under this act.

d. To provide educational and vocational guidance.

4. That the educational and training institutions should determine the qualifications of the individual for study in such institutions and for continuance in the courses.

5. That the individual should be free to select the institution in which he wishes to study, and, after counseling, to select the program of study which he wishes to pursue.

In respect to dangers of Federal programs in education operating on state and local levels rather than having proper jurisdiction in the hands of established educational agencies, Dr. Pullen referred to such Federal organizations as have existed such as FERA, CWA, CCC, WPA, NYA, etc. He emphasized that the avoidance of such Federal controls of education would depend upon the effectiveness of sound educational planning on the part of such State-wide groups as represented in the Loyola College conference gatherings.

Among the many problems facing schools, Dr. Pullen enumerated the following as typical:

1. There must be a wide range in the kinds of education on all levels—college, secondary, vocational, etc.

2. We must constantly remind ourselves that mature men with certain definite types of education will want re-training.

3. There will be need for special classes for veterans who differ psychologically from younger students.

4. More than ever, there will be need for sympathetic and understanding teachers.

5. We shall have to find possible "short cuts" in instruction, but there should be no lowering of standards, although possibly some changes in traditional standards may be made. Maturity will count.

6. There will be evident shifting from course to course, restlessness, and lack of proper guidance. These matters must be given due consideration.

7. The current demands of war face us with the possibility of civilian youth probably being eliminated from opportunities for college education.

8. Dr. Pullen enumerated other problems facing the schools, taking time only to emphasize their high importance as follows:

a. Part-time education in agriculture, trade and industry, distributive education, etc.

b. Adult education of all types and degrees.

c. The tremendous importance of teacher training.

d. Rehabilitation of civilians as well as veterans.

e. A greatly expanded and improved vocational education program.

The acting chairman expressed deep appreciation to Dr. Pullen for his presentation of post-war education problems. He then gave a clear explanation of the proposed plan for organizing the Maryland Conference on Post-War Education. He explained there was to be an executive committee with representation as indicated in the agenda for the March 25 meeting. He further explained that representatives on the executive committee will be chairmen of sub-committees made up of members taken from the respective educational fields, including members-at-large. He further stated that a legislative committee would be appointed from among the members of the executive committee by its chairman and vice-chairman.

A report of the nominating committee was asked for by the temporary chairman. This committee was comprised of Dr. Gilbert Mead, President, Washington College, Chairman; Dr. Thomas G. Pullen, Jr., State Superintendent of Schools; Dr. David E. Weglein, Superintendent of Schools, Baltimore. Dr. Mead presented the following nominations:

Permanent Chairman—The Very Rev. Edward B. Bunn, S.J., President of Loyola College.

Vice-Chairman—Dr. Thomas G. Pullen, Jr., State Superintendent of Schools.

Dr. Mead occupied the chair and called for nominations from the floor. There being none, he entered a motion for electing the ticket as presented by the nominating committee. This resulted in the unanimous choice of Father Bunn as permanent chairman, and Dr. Pullen as vice-chairman. Father Bunn very graciously accepted the chairmanship, and immediately appointed as permanent secretary Glen D. Brown, Professor, Industrial Education, University of Maryland, and Assistant State Director of Vocational Education.

Following a discussion led by Dr. Mead, Dr. David E. Weglein moved that the proposed plan of determining the executive committee be adopted. His motion passed. This left the matter of determining the membership of the executive committee to the permanent chairman and vice-chairman. Father Bunn stated that in making such determination he and Dr. Pullen solicited the advice and counsel of other conference members. He stated that the executive committee, legislative committee, and personnel of sub-committees would be indicated to the conference membership as soon as effected. He indicated that this would be at the earliest time possible.

After these business matters, the chairman opened the meeting to general discussion. Many contributions were made by various persons in the group both in respect to problems discussed by Dr. Pullen and pertinent matters with which the conference will need to deal in its further considerations of post-war conditions. Among those participating in the general discussions were Dr. Mead, Dr. Winslow, Dr. Wilson, Dr. Cronin, Dr. Bollen, Dean Grant, Mr. Van Sant, Dr. Preston, Dr. Holloway and Major Lamborn. Father Bunn very carefully noted all questions raised and assured the participants that their questions and suggestions would be included appropriately in the agenda of the respective sub-committees, the executive committee, and in the future conference group meetings.

Dr. Pullen supported by Dr. Weglein proposed a rising vote of thanks to Father Bunn and to Loyola College officials for their courtesy as hosts to the conference. The meeting was then adjourned at 12:50 after a cordial invitation by Father Bunn for all members to attend a buffet luncheon prepared for them in the Faculty Residence. Practically all in attendance were present at the luncheon and were unanimous in their feeling that the whole conference meeting was a high success.

Respectfully submitted,

Glen D. Brown,
Secretary.

Pre-war Proms

At many of the dances, the favors have been small pins with a Greyhound attached to a gold "L".

On one occasion, when the class had a very large subscription, the favor was a small electric clock, with the college seal on the face of the clock. Other favors have included bracelets with the college seal attached, novelty pins and necklaces.

Woe Curtains Proms

Although the war will naturally curtail proms to a great extent, Loyola proms will go on. The dances will be held even with a small student body, so that one of the most important phases of the college training can be continued.

Baltimore Motorettes

GREYHOUND Correspondent,
School of Adult Education

For uproarious comedy these days, I recommend riding the street cars. The show will not cost one-sixth the price of a first-rate movie; there's no tax, and it certainly is a riot!

The new conductorettes and motorettes, as they are called, really give you your money's worth in performance. Here's what I mean:

The other noon I boarded the street car in a terrific hurry to keep a dental appointment. Shoe-leather express would have carried me there just as quickly. We had gone only two blocks when the street car stalled.

Perfectly unconscious of the passengers, the motorette turned around to the conductorette and yelled: "Hey, Mabel, it won't work."

Mabel, a clumsy creature, lumbered up the aisle to her assistance. The pair of them fumbled with the works, but with no results, so Mabel started back to her fare-box with the motorette screaming after her, "Hey, Mabel, call the trouble wagon!"

"I ain't got a nickel," hollered back Mabel.

"Well, you dope, take it out of the fare-box; we gotta get help some place."

Mabel dragged one foot after the other off the car and into the corner drug store, while we sat there waiting patiently. Finally, a man who evidently couldn't stand the suspense any longer walked up to the motorette, took over the situation, and in a jiffy had the car running.

We had gone several blocks when Mabel came running down the street, screaming at the top of her lungs, "Hey, wait for me!"

Precisely in the middle of a street intersection, the motorette stopped the car and excitedly shouted, "Oh, Mabel, look—that man pushed some gadget and suddenly it ran just glorious!"

But poor Mabel stood there, a dumb flora in distress, crying "What are we gonna do—I've already called the trouble wagon!"

"Hop in, you jerk, we're late enough already," retorted the sympathetic motorette.

And with that we were off—yes, off schedule.

For my second point—quite often these female street car operators use the customers to provide the entertainment. They start the car off with a bang and seat you squarely in the aisles, or they stop suddenly and land you on the other fellow's toe.

You apologize; grab a strap in the shuffle; push your hat straight and get yourself adjusted, only to find that another sudden jump lands you to someone's lap.

By the time you reach your destination, you have a fine idea of a sardine's life. You ring the bell, because you want to get off at the next stop.

Before you can ease through the crowd to the door, the car has started off and you're lucky if you make the next corner. Then you jump off gracefully.

You really have no alternative because before you get your foot off the step on to the pavement, the motorette has closed the door and the car is plunging down the street, headed for death and destruction, or the end of the line.

been very high and it is hoped that every student will attend. The price of a ticket is $3.60, including tax.

Charles Meagher, Henry Eckhardt and Donald Giblin are handling the sale of tickets.

Reservations Available

Table reservations may be procured from Edward McGarry.

The dance will be held between 9 and 1, and the dress will be formal. The Prom is open to all students and alumni of Loyola College, and the friends of students and alumni.

Contest Rules Listed . . .

The rules of the short story contest which was announced on page one of this issue are given below. Additional information may be obtained from the Contest Editor whose address also follows. Undergraduates seeking information may call at THE GREYHOUND office.

1. The contest is open to all alumni and undergraduates of Loyola College including students enrolled in the School of Adult Education.
2. Any number of entries may be submitted, but each will be considered as an entry.
3. Two prizes will be awarded: first prize, $50 in War Bonds; second prize, $25 in War Bonds. In case of ties, duplicate prizes will be awarded.
4. The deadline of the contest is July 25, 1944, at which time all entries must be in the hands of the Contest Editor in suitable condition for judging. Entries submitted by mail should be addressed to Contest Editor, THE GREYHOUND, Loyola College, Baltimore—10, Maryland.
5. It is requested that all entries be typewritten, double-spaced on one side of 8 1/2 by 11 white typewriter paper. In view of the scarcity of typewriters, entries written in ink and received by the Contest Editor on or before July 23 will be typed by members of the staff of THE GREYHOUND. No responsibility can be assumed for typists' errors.
6. Any short story between 1000 and 3500 words in length, on any subject, is acceptable. Judges' decisions will be based on originality of theme and treatment and general literary ability of the writer. Judges' decisions in all cases will be final.
7. All entries become the property of THE GREYHOUND, but articles which do not appear in print within six months after the decision of the judges has been announced will be returned to the writers.

Writers Plan Banquet

Upon completion of Volume XVII of THE GREYHOUND, the staff will hold their semi-annual banquet. The event will take place on the evening of May 29. The new Editor-in-Chief will be announced at that time. This year THE GREYHOUND has published more issues (12) than in any year since its founding in 1927.

Student Actors Thrill Audience

"Sold out" was an apt phrase when the Masque and Rapier Society presented three one-act plays on the evenings of May 5 and 6 at Loyola's Little Theatre.

The first play of the evening was "The Trilby of Greva", a sophisticated comedy by the late Ring Lardner, one of America's foremost writers. It portrayed three morose fishermen who went through a "Snappy-Reply" routine. The fishermen were played by Francis Locke, Herbert Prescott, and Robert Longley.

The second play, the main attraction of the program, was "The Monkey's Paw", a suspense-filled mystery story by W. W. Jacobs and Louise N. Parker. Composed of three scenes, this play lasted three quarters of an hour. The cast included Terrence Burke, Thaddeus Slwinski, Joseph Leary, William Meyer, and John Plunkett.

The final play of the evening, "The Rising of the Moon" was a comedy. It was written by Lady Gregory and was based on the Irish Rebellion. Included in the cast were Thomas Garvey, Bernard Moroz, George Edwards, and John Ahlers.

The stage crew was under the direction of Howard Stott. Frank Lubbehausen had charge of the distribution of publicity, and Mike Molloy, assisted by Ed Hart, handled finances and ticket selling. The plays were directed by Thaddeus Slwinski, former president of the Society, and Rev. Matthew G. Sullivan, S.J., moderator.

Ahlers Recounts Colorful History of Faculty House

By John Ahlers

Almost fifty years ago a prominent New York architect undertook the construction of a magnificent mansion on the grounds now occupied by Loyola College. The house was to be perfect and little expense was spared in its completion. This was to be the grand wedding gift of Mr. Garrett for his son.

And so it was:—massive rooms, brilliant casement windows, large mahogany panels and tapestry was necessary to have it supplied by the same region which had furnished the original stone. Thus, to Waymouth, Mass., was sent the order for stone to match that previously used.

Mr. Gaudreau, the architect for the new wing, went to great pains to duplicate the exact Elizabethan Tudor style of architecture. The wrought iron work which embellished the doors and the windows in the former building were faithfully copied into the addition. So exact was this reproduction, that the new wing won an architectural award for its excellence.

covered walls all added to the sensation of grandeur which one received upon entering the house.

The gift, however, though precise in every detail, fell hollow when the groom died shortly before he was to occupy the house. It is said that he was brought to his new home as a corpse and there, in the dim of the twilight, the coffin was slowly carried into every room.

Following this tragedy in the family, Mrs. Garrett moved into her deceased husband's home where she resided for four years. During this period she planted the famous Italian gardens.

In the course of the last World War the house was leased to the United States Army as a home for blind soldiers, Mrs. Garrett having previously moved next door to Evergreen Junior.

In 1920 John Garrett sold the house and the estate to the Society of Jesus because, as he himself said, "he felt that they would never relinquish it."

When the Very Rev. Edward B. Bunn, S.J., began the addition of a new wing in 1939, he was determined to obtain an exact duplication of the architecture and materials which were used in the original building. Supplies were secured which matched exactly those used in the previous construction.

Sodality Plans Huge Reception Of New Members

The Blue Star Chapter of the Sodality of the Immaculate Conception will hold its annual Mass and Communion Breakfast this Sunday at Evergreen at 9 a. m. Immediately after Mass, breakfast will be served in the Cafeteria.

New members will be received into the College Sodality at this time, and plans for new projects will be formulated.

May Procession May 21

One week later, on Sunday, May 21, the Sodality Union of Baltimore will sponsor a May Procession at Mount St. Agnes College. The Sodalities of Mt. St. Agnes, Notre Dame of Maryland, Loyola, and Johns Hopkins will participate in the ceremony, as well as the Sodalities of the high schools in the city.

The procession will proceed over the campus of Mt. St. Agnes and finally terminate at the Grotto of Our Lady. A male college student will deliver a short sermon on the Blessed Mother.

May Queen From Mt. St. Agnes

The May Queen will be a student of Mt. St. Agnes, and her train of eight attendants will be composed of students of both girls' schools.

The previous undertaking of the Sodality Union of Baltimore, the Blood Donor Project, ended two weeks ago. Prior to the designated days of donation, Loyola students had signed their names to the Donor Cards on the bulletin boards. The Rev. Thomas J. Higgins, S.J., Student Counselor, and Richard Lerch, the Prefect of the Sodality, gave talks in the cafeteria about the project.

We Too Have A College Song

Alma Mater

Alma Mater, dear Loyola, we salute your noble name;
Evergreen your memory and ever bright your fame.
Keep alight the lamp of learning,
Yon lighted hearth's glow at its flame;
Send them forth to all the world your teachings to proclaim.
Hail, dear Loyola, hail, Alma Mater true!
Our love and our loyalty to you we pledge anew.
Years may come in between, seas may us part,
Still will each loyal son keep you cherished, Loyola, in his heart.

Some time ago, just as an experiment, we approached a dozen or so of the student body and asked them to repeat for us the words of the college song. We even asked some of the newly-hazed freshmen, who have supposedly been initiated into college life. If you are an average student, you can guess the result. We have yet to hear the Loyola College song from the lips of a Loyola College student.

Granted that the lyrics have recently been subject to change; granted that not much opportunity has been given the student to sing the song, granted this and granted that, it is still the job of each and every one of us to brand those words into our memories so that they can never be forgotten.

It is a trivial point, we hear someone saying, an unimportant thing to go to all the trouble of learning a song. What is it going to get you?

That question has us puzzled a bit. It's hard to say exactly and concretely what profit that bit of rote is going to secure. But let us consider, before we admit the lack of any profit, the two phases in a college man's career: his two years as student, and the rest of his years as an alumnus.

In college, your school song, speaking plainly and simply, is a bond. It is quite likely, you know, that you will go through your college career without personally knowing all of your fellow students. But, nevertheless, all of them are your friends and associates. There is a smile and friendship when you meet off the campus and learn that they are students of the same college, or have been. Why? The only concrete reason you have is in your college song.

Then, as an alumnus, you have only memories of college days. And what will be one outstanding, cherished, memory? The college song. One concrete thing that is true of your Alma Mater for all graduating classes.

Condolences

The Faculty and the Student Body extend their deepest sympathy to Mr. Joseph S. May, whose father died recently. Mr. May's father graduated from Loyola in 1903.

The Reader's Right From Anzio Beachhead . . .

Anzio, Italy

Dear Father Gibbons:

I want to thank you for placing me on your mailing list for THE GREYHOUND, for I have already assured you how keenly interesting it is. Give my best wishes to all the faculty.

Well, Father, they have us moving again. This time it's the beachhead at Anzio. Though we're not advancing, there's no doubt at all but that we are keeping quite a number of German divisions occupied on a small front. So it should be of some assistance to the large scale invasion of Europe that seems imminent. I'm hoping against hope that circumstances will turn in our favor so that the Vatican and Rome, and that great northern occupied part of Italy, will be saved from wanton destruction. Being so close to Rome, I have a great desire to be one of the fortunate who will have the opportunity of a papal audience.

Sincerely,

Pel. Raymond Whitehead

From "Pinkie" Williams . . .

Camp Wickers, Texas

Dear Father Higgins:

I know that I have been awfully slow in getting in contact with Loyola. That is due to the fact that everything here is rather strange to me, and it has taken me quite some time to settle down.

I am in an anti-tank company. In the course of our training we fire fifty types of weapons, specializing in the anti-tank gun.

I am constantly going over in my mind the time that I spent at Loyola. I especially miss THE GREYHOUND office. Thinking of my time at Evergreen, I can't help but wonder at the patience which you and the other Fathers had in helping me over the rough spots. I can never fully show my appreciation for that.

I hope that everything there is coming along well. Evergreen will be my first stop when this mess is over. Above all, Father, please remember me in your prayers. I am doing my best to be a good Catholic and a good Loyola man.

So long for now,

Sincerely,

(Pel.) John R. ("Pinkie") Williams

From a Fortress Navigator . . .

Dear Father Gibbons:

Just finished reading our March 24 issue of THE GREYHOUND and Jack Kernan's article on the unmatchable Fr. Apt. It was a fitting tribute to "Little Joe", as we humorously knew him, and brought back a lot of memories, all of them pleasant, of days in his class.

I have been keeping in touch with a number of the boys: Jack Dorsch, now at Michigan State, ASTP; Graye D. McManus, a cadet in advanced flying school; Bob Thurlow of Gulfport; his brother, Don, aerial gunner at Kingman, Arizona, and Frankie Mueller. Cy, my cousin, is in Alaska, and Dick Thuma is or was in India. Fr. Grady writes from England that he met Jimmy Ostendorf, who played Yardley in "Our Town," several months ago.

As for myself, I am a navigator on a B-17, and once read one issue of THE GREYHOUND at 20,000 feet while our bombardier was doing his job over an Oklahoma range. Enclosed you will find a contribution to the scholarship fund.

Sincerely,

Bill Parkinson, '43

A Mother Writes . . .

Dear Father Bunn:

I had a letter from my son Ned Stevenson, from Monterey, California. He informed me that he has just been made a lieutenant. Will you think me unduly proud of my son if I would you to know this fact, and ask you to have it put in THE GREYHOUND?

I have been an invalid since last November, and have been anointed twice since Ned left.

Ned has been such a fine son to me. He has not missed a day writing to me. He has sent me a most generous amount which enabled me to have comfort during my sickness.

Excuse this scribble, Father. I can scarcely write any more. I hope to be here when my boy comes back home again.

Gratefully,

Mrs. E. W. Stevenson

ALUMNI DOINGS

By Edward A. Doehler, '30

Alumni Communion Breakfast

One of the activities most typical of Loyola's Alumni Association is the annual Communion Mass and Breakfast held on the Evergreen campus on the first Sunday of May. Most of us look back on these May morning gatherings as a chain of happy memories leading us to the days when we attended the College as students.

This year, in spite of the war, an unusually large number of Alumni attended Mass on May 7, offered their Communions for Loyola's Servicemen, and listened to a stirring address by Maj. Gen. Philip Hayes, Commanding General of the Third Service Command. This activity and the others sponsored by the Alumni Association will continue through the war regardless of numbers, in the knowledge that after the war Loyola and her Alumni will be entering upon an era of activity and expansion unprecedented in her near-century of history.

Recent Alumni Visitors

Among the many Alumni visiting Baltimore in recent weeks we were fortunate to contact the following: Major Pierre A. Kleff, '29, recently returned from important work at the battle front in the European theater of operations, and passed through Baltimore on his way to further duties. Major Kleff will be remembered as Professor of Chemistry at Loyola. Lt. Charles O. Fisher, '38, attached to the Signal Corps at Ft. Monmouth, N. J., recently visited Baltimore and contacted former associates at Loyola. Lt. Fisher also brought news from Capt. Daniel J. Loden '39, also stationed at Ft. Monmouth. Among the younger graduates to visit us recently was Ensign Richard Oppitz, class of October, '43, on his way to duty on an LST; Lt. Daniel R. Lucchesi, '43, on duty with the Air Forces; and recently commissioned Ensign William M. White, '44, on his way to Navy duty at Solomons, Md.

From F. Joseph McDonald, ex '41

"Joe" McDonald, serving with the Anti-Aircraft division of the Field Artillery, has recently written from Camp Claiborne, La. Joe is interested in many things about Loyola—including the present location of the former "BS II" boys. In speaking about the basketball team, he insists on using "we" and his reason is a very natural one: "I still feel that I am a part of the school, and I always will feel that way." At present Joe is going through five weeks of training on the 105 mm. howitzer where he is getting all the opportunity in the world to try out to practice the mathematics that he learned at Loyola.

Bill Feild of '42, a Lieutenant in the Army Air Forces, is back in the States after spending quite a stretch in England. Bill finds army life interesting, and his Radar work particularly fascinating. His interest in Loyola has not diminished in the years since graduation. Bill is particularly concerned with the accelerated program at the College: "We who were there during peace-time certainly had enough to do. What must these poor fellows be doing?" And of course he is following THE GREYHOUND and the Greyhounds. Through this letter we also receive greetings from another Alumnus, Lt. Thomas J. Wellham, ex '42, also of the Air Forces, whom Bill met in England.

Capt. Robert D. Rhoads, '39, was home recently on a furlough. Capt. Rhoads, who is the pilot of a Flying Fortress in the AAF, has fifty missions to his credit, in three theaters of war—Africa, Sicily and Italy.

He led a squadron of Fortresses on thirty of the fifty missions across enemy territory. Of the ten men in Capt. Rhoads' crew, three were awarded the Purple Heart, and the waist gunner a Silver Star for shooting down a plane while he was badly wounded.

Capt. Rhoads himself has the Purple Heart and nine other awards. He enlisted in the Air Corps in September, 1941.

J. Solfers Oneto, ex '45, Seaman 2nd Class, USNR, is training at the U. S. Naval Training Station, Coddington Point, Newport, R. I. He is attending the Quartermaster School.

William F. Mack, '41, is now a First Lieutenant in the Quartermaster Corps of the Army. Lieut. Mack is stationed at Camp Lee, Virginia, teaching basic training.

SWINGOLOGY

By Henry Eckhardt, Jr.

Louis, The Greatest Of Them All

"Louis Armstrong is more than the King of Jazz; he is its soul; he is jazz itself; he is the great standard against which all other jazzmen are measured. To my mind, he is the one indisputable genius American music has produced, and as years go by, he appears ever more outstanding. No true lover of jazz denies his preeminent position." This comment was made by Robert Goffin in his new book on jazz which was published recently.

Many separate factors have combined to make Armstrong an outstanding jazz musician. He possesses most of the qualities which arouse superlatives from critics who approach the field of jazz. Each one of these qualities alone enough to make an interesting musician, Louis is lucky enough to have almost all of them. One of the most remarkable is his endurance, which was developed in a harder training school than that through which most jazz musicians of today must go.

Then, too, there is the beauty of Armstrong's tone which has a largeness and warmth about it. Undoubtedly, there is some of Bunk Johnson's unusual tone and vibrato contained in it, for Louis can neither play or sing without showing this warmth. This quality is controlled by his vibrato. A musician's vibrato is as individual as his finger prints and has little to do with his consciousness, but is produced under the stress of emotion. Thus it is not surprising that no one has been able to emulate Armstrong's broad, smooth, yet unusually fast vibrato.

There are many excellent musicians who realize that Louis is far ahead of them, in a class by himself. The reason for this is simple. He has the precise balance which is necessary for the full expression of a great jazz musician. All the necessary elements, and these of the required strength, are providently brought together in him. He has the spirit which is needed in order to conceive, and also that which is necessary to put these conceptions into effect. These two qualities, developed to such a degree are to be found in only one man once every generation. There are other musicians who have original ideas; who have the creative power, but who have not been able to master their means of expression. Some have the necessary intelligence and memory to serve their creativeness, but they do not have the "satchmo's" spontaneous spirit—they only repeat his ideas in diluted form.

Richard Jones said the last word when he remarked, "as long as those pearly teeth hold out, Louis'll still be playing something new, and all the others will be running after him trying to catch up."

ED. NOTE: In the August issue Mr. Eckhardt will answer questions on modern music, submitted to him before August 1. If you have any questions, please send them to the Feature Editor, in care of THE GREYHOUND.

By John J. Kernan

(All of the books reviewed in this column may be obtained in the Loyola College Library. Books may be borrowed for 14 days and are renewable, if necessary.)

Here Is Your War by Ernie Pyle. With the roar of guns and the cries of wounded men resounding throughout the pages of his war diary, Mr. Pyle has very realistically described the present world conflict. This book is more than a recounting of the day-to-day fighting of the American doughboy. It brings to us on the home front a refreshing style of news-reporting coupled with a modicum of even-tempered humor.

Here the American is shown as the man in a war he did not want but which he is going to win. Mr. Pyle accompanied the American forces throughout the African campaign, from the invasion to the defeat of Rommel. Sharing the hardships which our soldiers had to endure, the author obtained firsthand information which he uses extensively in his book.

A Treasury of Science edited by Harlow Shapley, Samuel Ruggert and Helen Wright. Here the greatest masters of all fields of science are given a sufficient amount of space to expound their theories. The work has been admirably compiled and deserves much consideration.

The Vatican and the War by Familie Cianfarra. As a newspaper man covering Italian news, as well as Vatican affairs, Mr. Cianfarra had many unique opportunities to observe world trends in reference to the Vatican.

The story begins immediately before the death of Pius XI and covers the entire period up to the outbreak of hostilities between Italy and the United States. The very lucid analysis of the situation preceding the election of Pius XII gives one a thorough understanding of the difficult position which the Vatican experienced upon electing a new Pope. As the author so well explains, the policy of the governing body of the Catholic church must not interfere in international politics except where they directly affect the members' faith. And yet, the Pope has today become an important political figure, with obligations to his charges throughout the world, in both Allied and Axis nations.

Here the excellent and deep understanding of Mr. Cianfarra concerning the Vatican, is most valuable. Employing numerous cases of international plotters scheming to entangle the Vatican, the author shows how various governments have attempted to use the prestige of the Vatican to their own advantage. With the advent of the present war, those "causes" have increased a hundred-fold and proportionately increased the difficulties of the Pope.

Mid-May Murmurs

Has the Frank Goldsmith forgotten so soon the lesson painfully demonstrated by members of the Junior Class in March? He is still emulating his idol, 'the voice,' much to the dismay of all those within range of hearing. To date, although no one has been known to swoon, many have expressed the desire that Frank would, every time he opens his mouth. The lot of all true artists is indeed hard.

All other sophomores must sit back in silent ignorance whenever Garvey, Lamb, Locke or Prescott open their mouths. These lucky men are taking Ethics and Psychology ("—we call it sike—") while the rest of their classmates are still struggling along with English and Calculus. Some day we'll be smart too—if we keep on studying.

Club News

The Masque and Rapier Dramatic Club will present a series of four one-act plays written by members of the Sophomore English class, next week. The stage will be fumigated after the show through the courtesy of the Orchid Extermination Association.

The Math Club will meet tomorrow evening to hear a lecture on: "The Truth Behind Some Constant K." Mr. James F. O'Neill, who spent seven years conducting research on the matter in the jungles of southern Liberia, will be the lecturer. Crocheted doughnuts and birch beer will be served after the meeting.

The Fearless Five, Loyola's classical orchestra, was represented at the annual convention of the Chamber Music Society of Upper Sewer Street. (For the benefit of the musically illiterate, it might be mentioned that Sewer Street intersects Lower Basin Street just this side of the viaduct.)

Running With The Hounds

By Bill Meyer

The Green and Gray nine finally broke into the winning picture when they blasted a 14-1 victory over Haverford last Saturday.

Tim Parr held the opponents to four scattered hits and fanned 12, while the slug-festing Hounds crippled the Quaker hurlers with an amazing total of willow clouts. Knobby Harris and Frank Goldsmith galloped around the infield, stealing 5 and 3 bases respectively.

Meanwhile on the tennis courts, the Loyola racketeers smothered Haverford, 7-2, to capture their initial match. Bill Thaler, Jerry Gaudreau, and Jim Lacy, Jr., easily trounced their adversaries in the singles events. In the doubles, Thaler and Gaudreau, Lacy and Gene O'Connor combined to strafe their foes and gain a quick victory.

Having topped two major collegiate spring sports events, these squads may have obtained the incentive needed to keep the Hounds on their victory march throughout the remaining contests of the season.

* * * *

Contrary to the report published in the Baltimore Sun last Friday, Loyola College has not severed relations with Catholic University.

It is the boast of this College, since its founding in 1852, that it has always been on cordial relations with all of its opponents. That this tradition will be enduring is the firm hope of the present athletic officials at Evergreen.

Middies' Salvos Blast Courtmen

The tennis team fell victim to a well-balanced Navy squad, 9-0, in its initial match of the season, played at Annapolis on April 19.

Bill Thaler, state junior tennis titlist, playing in the no. one spot for the Greyhounds, found Edwards, Navy's big gun, too strong and dropped his match in straight sets 6-3, 6-4.

Norris Tops Lacy

Norris, Navy's no. two man, encountered less opposition in Jim Lacy and waltzed off with a 6-0, 6-1 decision.

Jerry Gaudreau, Joe Thaler, Bimble Jackson, and Herb Prescott offered little competition for the Midshipmen as they dropped their matches in straight sets.

Doubles Are Hard Fought

In the doubles event Lacy and Bill Thaler paired to stage a close, hard-fought match against Edwards and Norris. The Loyola combination extended the Middies to a 7-5 first set, but the sailors easily took the second, 6-3. This proved to be the outstanding match of the event as the midshipmen took the other two doubles matches with little trouble.

The final results: Edwards, Navy, defeated W. Thaler, Loyola, 6-3, 6-4; Norris, Navy, defeated Lacy, Loyola, 6-0, 6-1; Crawford, Navy, defeated Gaudreau, Loyola, 6-1, 6-2; Doyle, Navy, defeated J. Thaler, Loyola, 6-0, 6-1; Davis, Navy, defeated Jackson, Loyola, 6-0, 6-0; Kinetz, Navy, defeated Prescott, Loyola, 6-0, 6-0. Edwards and Norris, Navy, defeated W. Thaler and Lacy, Loyola, 7-5, 6-3; Crawford and Doyle, Navy, defeated Gaudreau and J. Thaler, Loyola, 6-0, 6-2; Davis and Kinetz, Navy, defeated Jackson and Prescott, Loyola, 6-0, 6-0.

Thaler Claims Netmen Geared For Jay Match

Loyola College's 1944 tennis team will meet the Johns Hopkins squad this afternoon at Homewood.

The netmen swung back into action last week against Haverford after dropping an early-season decision to the Naval Academy. The Midshipmen had too much on the ball for the willing but outclassed Hounds, and pranced off with a 9-0 victory. Navy is the present holder of the Eastern Intercollegiate title, and it looks as if it will have little trouble repeating this year.

W. Thaler In No. 1 Spot

Bill Thaler, Maryland Junior Amateur Champion, holds down the no. 1 spot for the Greyhounds, and Jim Lacy, the no. 2. Last year Thaler and Lacy, playing for Loyola High School, captured the Maryland Senior Public Park Doubles Championship and teamed up this year to hold down the first doubles slot on the Loyola team.

Lanky Jerry Gaudreau and Joe Thaler operate in the third and fourth positions respectively, and combine to form the number two doubles team. Bimble Jackson and Herb Prescott round out the starting squad.

Team Lacks Reserve Strength

Thus far the team has been hampered by lack of reserve strength, and consists of only the above-mentioned performers. However, Gene O'Connor and Dutch Mohler are rounding into shape and should give some much-needed support. O'Connor, who has already enlisted in the United States Navy, may not be around much longer since he is subject to call in the immediate future.

With Navy, probably its toughest foe, already in the background, the squad is looking forward to breaking into the victory column. Haverford was met on May 6 at Haverford and again on May 10 at home. Georgetown is scheduled for tomorrow at Evergreen and May 20 away. The final match of the year will be a return match against Hopkins on May 26.

Matches With Villanova Uncertain

Two matches with Villanova are being sought on a home-and-home basis, but as yet no word has been received from the Villanets.

The team has made use of the College's cement courts to get into shape, and will continue to use them for their matches until the Clifton Park Courts are available.

Letter From Lefty

Dear Father Bunn:

It is quite a job getting a few minutes around here to write a letter. The Navy really keeps us "Boots" on the move. The first few days were like you said they would be. I was rather low in spirits to say the least. We have quite a few college men in our company, Henry Zerhusen, ex '45, is here with us.

I was put in charge of athletics on Friday for our company. It does not amount to much, but it will keep me busy. We are supposed to finish our Boot training on May 5. I hope to see you during that week. As you probably know, Loyola College was like a second home to me, and was much more to me than just a job. My days at Loyola will always be close to my heart, and I sincerely hope I will return to the campus after this war is over.

When I see you in May, I will be able to tell just about what the Navy plans to do with me.

Sincerely,
Lefty

Hounds Bow To Ft. Meade

Charley Stancean and Johnny Starkus, Fort Meade twirlers, continued their hurling skill to set back the visiting Loyola College team, 6-3. The contest took place before approximately 1200 soldiers, with Senator George L. Ruddle as guest of honor.

The Greyhounds led by their able pitcher Tim Parr, who pitched the entire game, showed themselves capable opponents.

The Hounds knotted the count at one all in the first half of the third, then the soldiers came back strongly in the 2nd half. In this frame four singles, two Loyola miscues, and a passed ball gave the hosts three runs and put them ahead to stay.

Haslbeck Spurs Grey Linksman

Loyola's divot diggers will open their '44 season with an all-sophomore squad. Led by Nemo Haslbeck and five other sophomores, the Evergreen squad will be pitted against nearby teams.

Haslbeck, acting manager of the team will fill the first position. He played four years on Poly's varsity golf team and won the Maryland Interscholastic crown in 1943. Nemo is the proud owner of a very accurate approach shot which helped him win many of his matches for Poly. He is still in good form, recently scoring one over par for eighteen holes at Hillsdale Golf Course.

Gisriel In Second Slot

The second position is held by Tom Gisriel, who played for Loyola High for two years. Tom excels in his tremendously long drives, holding a great advantage over most golfers in this respect.

Frank Cashen in the third slot hails from Mt. St. Joe's where he played in 1942 and 1943. His performances on the greens are outstanding. His experience in caddy tournaments also have sharpened his play considerably.

Remaining Squad Inexperienced

Alban Eagers, Bernie Morenz, and George Edwards are backing up these capable performers. These players have had no high school experience but have played on their own and have developed well.

The Greyhounds have scheduled Johns Hopkins for a dual match to be played at the Bonnie View course on May 15. Georgetown will probably be met on a home-and-home basis but the details are still incomplete.

C.U. Edges Out Loyola Nine In 2-1 Battle

Catholic University Cardinals took advantage of every break offered them to eke out a 2-1 victory over Loyola in a game played here at Evergreen.

Dan Feeney, Loyola's slim right hander, went the distance for the Hounds and pitched excellent ball, striking out seven and walking one. Feeney also helped himself to two hits.

Cardinals Tally Early

The Cardinals opened the scoring in their half of the first inning when Fred Rice was hit by a pitched ball, reached third on Johnny Mereak's single, and tallied on Pistasio's infield out. They added another in the fourth, when Rellly walked, reached second on Skinny Simms' error, took third on Genovese's sacrifice, and scored on Brown's infield out.

Hart Scores For Loyola

Loyola came back to score a run in the seventh. Feeney singled but was forced out by Ed Hart. Hart stole second and went on to third when Mereak's throw went wild. Ed McGarry then slashed a single to left to score Hart.

The Hounds put together a spirited rally in the ninth when they loaded the bases with one hand out. Mereak caught Lou Franz off third, however, and Simms fled out to end the threat.

Hank Kingsbury went the route for the Cardinals and received credit for the win.

Dyer Says Fighting Spirit Characterizes Loyola Athletes

By Ed Hart

Whenever we listen to Bill Dyer's sports program, little do we realize what goes on while those famous recordings are being played. Besides preparing his future copy, he finds time to entertain interviewers.

"For a small college I think there is more concentration on sports at Loyola than at any other college in the country," were Mr. Dyer's first words while Kate Smith was singing "Embraceable You." He stated very emphatically that he considers the youthful and enthusiastic spirit the cause for much of Loyola's success. Likewise he thought that the young men who have been put in charge of sports at Loyola make up for the limited quantity with unlimited enthusiasm.

Baseball Outlook

As regards the Loyola 1944 baseball squad, Bill stated that they should do very well against other colleges. He thinks the Hounds will wind up in the top bracket. "I likewise feel that, as the season progresses, they will put up a better battle against service teams."

During Bing Crosby's "I Love You," Bill explained: "Another thing about Loyola which has impressed me immensely is the fact that during these war days sports at Evergreen have increased instead of decreased. Furthermore, it is my firm belief that if Frankie Mueller (Loyola first baseman from '40 to '42 inclusive) had been able to stay in pro ball he would have gone to the majors within a few years."

Attended Brown University

Mr. Dyer attended Haverford school in Haverford, Pa., and then spent two years at Brown University in Rhode Island. While at school Bill already had a great interest in sports. He played outside left in soccer and was captain of the squash and tennis teams.

Before coming to Baltimore in the Spring of 1941, Bill announced various sports programs in Philadelphia. He started his famous "Sports Parade" in May of the following year. For the last four years he has been announcing the Oriole games. Mr. Dyer further prophesied that the Orioles, with their great hitting power, should end up this year in the first division very near to the top if the pitching staff doesn't fall.

Radio Has A Big Job

Then came the "Gunnther Medley" in which Bill had more time to tell of his personal life. "Some of my hobbies are reading mysteries and biographies, seeing the movies, and following the latest sports. The greatest interest I get in broadcasting is the satisfaction of bringing sports to those who cannot get out to see them, for radio's most important job is to bring entertainment to those who are unable to get to it."

The greatest thrill in baseball that Bill has had in the past few years is the day he saw Lou Gehrig hit four home runs at Shibe Park in Philadelphia and just miss a fifth by a few inches.

In parting Bill said, "I want to take this opportunity to sincerely thank all the Loyola fellows for their great interest in my program and all that I can say now is to stick with these Hounds."

Minutes Of Conference On Post-War Education

(Following are excerpts from the official minutes of the Maryland Educational Conference for Post-War Organization held at Loyola College on March 25):

The Very Rev. Edward B. Bunn, S. J., President, Loyola College, acting as temporary chairman, and as host, called the conference meeting to order at the scheduled time in the Loyola College Library. Approximately 150 Maryland persons were in attendance, representing professional and graduate schools, liberal arts colleges, junior colleges, teacher training institutions, vocational schools, secondary and elementary schools (public, private, and parochial), adult education, rehabilitation, and veterans' administration. Public health leaders and other interested persons also were present.

After appointing a temporary secretary, the acting chairman welcomed the assembly very cordially and gave a clear summary of the origin and purposes of this initial state-wide educational conference on post-war organization. He reviewed briefly the conference session held on February 29, 1944, which was called by Dr. H. C. Byrd, President, University of Maryland, and which was held at the Johns Hopkins University with Dr. Isaiah Bowman, President, as host.

As explained by Father Bunn, the important outcome of the February 29 meeting at Johns Hopkins University resulted in unanimous agreement to the effecting of a State-wide organization representing all areas of education for the purpose of functional planning to meet post-war problems. Father Bunn, in his capacity of temporary chairman, in consultation with Dr. Thomas C. Pullen, Jr., State Superintendent of schools, had prepared agenda, determined the initial list of delegates to be invited, and made other necessary arrangements for the March 25th meeting.

The presiding chairman appropriately remarked that March 25 being Maryland Day made it very fitting to hold a conference dealing with post-war planning in the interest of education in Maryland. He expressed regrets that urgent duties had caused the absence from the present conference of other actively interested leaders, including Dr. Bowman and Dr. Byrd. He re-emphasized that the primary purpose of the conference was to form a State-wide organization and announced that he would limit the proceedings of the meeting to that end. After stating he had invited the State Superintendent to indicate some of the problems which the organized conference group on post-war education would find profitable and urgent to consider, Father Bunn introduced Dr. Pullen. Following is a list of the able presentation of the problems as outlined by Dr. Pullen. He stated that in the main the vital problems with which we were confronted center around three questions:

1. How may our schools fit into the immediate and the anticipated very important program of educating returning veterans? Also, how may the school meet education and training needs in regard to conversion of war workers to peace time occupations?

2. It is fundamental that education and training matters shall be channeled through established educational agencies on national, state, and local levels or by non-educational Federal agencies usurping state and local prerogatives.

3. What are some of the urgent problems confronting us now and in the post-war period, and how may the schools contribute to education and training needs in meeting these problems?

Early in his discussion, Dr. Pullen told the assembly about the national conference on prospective educational programs which, representing the National Association of

"I want a dish of vanilla ice cream," said Walter Norris bravely to the two gum-chewing waitresses behind the counter, who had been discussing their private lives.

"I want a dish of vanilla ice—"

"No vanilla," one of them snapped, and resumed her conversation.

"Then I'll have chocolate," he ventured.

"No chocolate." She now obviously considered the subject closed.

"Peach?" he inquired nervously.

"No peach," she yawned, frankly bored by the entire affair.

"Strawberry?" he whispered hoarsely.

"No strawberry."

"Then what kind of ice cream have you?" Walter asked in desperation.

"Well," admitted the counter-queen unwillingly, "we got black walnut."

"I'll have that," he said, eyes gleaming.

Languidly she found her slipper and rinsed it. Grudgingly she scooped the cream, chattering gaily all the while with her companion. Pausing only to pass the time of day with several newly-arrived sailors, she deposited the plate before him.

"But this is lemon sherbert," he exclaimed, eyeing the yellow mixture ruefully.

Exasperated at his choosiness, the waitress snapped, "What was it you said you wanted?"

"Just give me a glass of water," squeaked Walter, and collapsed.

GREYHOUND RATED ALL-AMERICAN

News was received after deadline that the Associated Collegiate Press, in its estimate of college papers in the United States, has awarded THE GREYHOUND an All-American rating for newspaper excellence, the highest rating awarded by the A. C. P.

The next issue of THE GREYHOUND will be published on August 10.

Md. Lacrosse Club Nips Loyola Ten

The Greyhounds dropped a 5-4 decision to the Maryland Athletic Club at Evergreen on April 26.

The tilt was extremely hard-fought and the result was not decided until the last two minutes of play, when Martin scored the winning tally for the opponents.

Jack Maskell led the scoring for the Greyhounds with two goals.

Coach Bud Strotl commented on the defeat by saying, "Although we feel the loss, the game plainly showed us our shortcomings, and I think we shall be able to profit by the lesson taught us. If nothing else, every member of the squad gained much needed experience, which will prove of value later in the season."

Local Chemist Addresses Club

Dr. Edward Radowskas, production superintendent for Dupont, addressed the Chemists Club on the place of a chemist in industry, on Wednesday, April 19.

Dr. Radowskas enumerated the various types of chemists employed in industry and explained the work of each. For aspiring industrial chemists he suggested the various jobs available and the training necessary for each. He explained which jobs were more desirable and which paid poorly.

In the course of the lecture, Dr. Radowskas expounded in detail the working of a typical chemical plant, illustrating the description with diagrams.

Dr. Radowskas is an alumnus of Loyola.
